

Having fun: Atilia helping the children sculpt balloons.

A little cheer for kids

They visit mall and take part in fun activities

HIMALAYA Herbal Healthcare recently celebrated its 80th anniversary in the health-care industry.

To commemorate the milestone, Himalaya reinforced its philanthropic message through its Kids of Himalaya community project.

Kids of Himalaya was established to raise funds for underprivileged children to accord them a better future and endeavours to stimulate young minds by unleashing their creativity through the form of art.

The project, which was in collaboration with Rotary Club of Petaling Jaya (RCPJ) in aid of the Precious Children's Home in Petaling Jaya, was a fun day out for 20 of the home's underprivileged children at iUtama.

Some of the enjoyable activities included balloon sculpting and an insight into Himalaya's eight-decade history.

As a special treat, Malaysian jazz songbird Atilia gave an exclusive performance for the children followed by a photo session.

Denise Yan, marketing manager of Emhun Elite Sdn Bhd (exclusive distributor of Himalaya products in Malaysia) said: "We believe in giving back to society especially by helping the needy."

"Together with Rotary Club, we are committed towards a common goal to make a difference in the lives of the unfortunate ones and to lend them a helping hand."

RCPJ president Leong Yeng Kit said: "The love and affection showered on the children will always be cherished by them and it gives us much joy to see that with more public awareness, we are able to make a difference in their lives."
